Professional Hockey Player Opens New Training Camp at Winding River Skating Center

Exciting news at Winding River Skating Center! Toms River's own Jack Walchessen, a five-year member of the "Peterborough Petes" of the Ontario Hockey League has opened a new hockey training camp.

At 16, Jack was drafted by the Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey League (OHL). Playing with the Petes for five seasons (2006-2011), Jack served as assistant captain from 2008-2010 and was selected to serve as the 57th captain of the organization during his final season.

After completing his junior career, Jack signed his first professional contract with the Trenton Titans of the ECHL in 2011. Since Stepping away from the game in 2013 Jack has rapidly established himself as one of the most sought after skating and skills coaches in the New Jersey area.

Determined to spread his knowledge and teaching of the modern style of hockey to hockey players around the world, Jack created <http://WalchessenHockey.com>. With the help of technology, Jack is able to deliver his vast hockey knowledge and unique style of teaching, helping players of all ages and abilities unleash Their Potential. Jack currently resides in New Jersey, where he is a Scout for the Kingston Frontenacs of the Ontario Hockey League, and works with hockey players daily during his private lessons.

Jack's summer development camp at Winding River Skating Center takes place this week. Some of his long standing friends joined him in yesterday's training session.
